

Johnson Releases $1 Billion in Inflation Fight

BY EILEEN SHANARAN
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — President Johnson released Saturday $1.1 billion more of the government funds that were frozen last fall as part of the government's fight against inflation.

Saturday's release was the third since the turn of the year in face of a slowdown in business activity and a lessening of inflationary pressures.

The money made available included $1 billion for highway construction and a total of $149 million for six other programs, including federal grants to local governments for the construction of airports and sewage disposal plants.

In announcing the President's order, Charles L. Schultze, the director of the Bureau of the Budget, said once more, as Administration officials have done all year, that the unfreezing of the funds was dictated solely by the lessening of inflationary price movements. No mention was made in Schultze's statement of the recent declines in industrial production, factory employment and other business indicators that have caused many economists outside of government to fear that a recession might be developing.

Schultze noted in particular the recent decline in the prices quoted by contractors for highway construction jobs. The drop in highway construction bids amounted to 2.4 per cent in the final quarter of last year he said, a price movement that contrasted sharply with the average increase of 2 per cent a quarter in the previous 18 months.

The $1 billion in highway funds that was ordered unfrozen involves money that the Administration had never publicly announced was frozen in the first place.

It is money that Congress and the Bureau of Public Roads authorized the states to commit to contractors for highway construction in Fiscal 1966 and earlier years but which, for various reasons, had not actually been committed by the

SECOND STRAIGHT NIGHT

Nashville Negro College Students Battle Police

By BILL BARTON
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Police and rioting Negroes exchanged gunfire on the Tennessee State University campus last night as violence spread through the Negro community in northwest Nashville for the second straight night.

No one was believed wounded by the shots, but hospitals reported a number of persons injured by rocks and bottles. Police riot squads patrolled the two-square-mile area, trying to disperse roaming bands of rock-throwing Negro youths. Fires believed caused by Molotov cocktails broke out in two business buildings — both in the area of Fisk University, where violence first erupted Saturday night after a policeman ejected a Negro from a Negro tavern at the owner's request.

Controversial black power advocate Stokely Carmichael appeared at Fisk earlier Saturday.

Carmichael spoke in Knoxville yesterday. He is scheduled to address a group in Tupelo, Miss., today.

With the violence more widespread, helmeted police expanded their patrols and widened the perimeter around the trouble zone.

Officers abandoned trying to cordon off a definite area, and tried instead to prevent small groups from joining forces.

Newsmen reported sniper fire, and cars passing through the area had their windshields smashed by missiles. Police exchanged shots with some persons in the Tennessee State area.

Ronald White of Madison said he was driving past Tennessee State when a Negro man threw a brick through the window of his car. The brick narrowly missed White's 2-year-old daughter.

"All of a sudden someone threw a brick through our window, and someone said 'Get out of here, you white S.O.B.'," White said.

Among those injured was Associated Press photographer Bruce Cooter, struck by flying

Jamestown Council Head Dies

JAMESTOWN — Frank R. Franco, 57, president of Jamestown City Council for the past four years died Saturday afternoon in Jamestown General Hospital where he had been a patient for three days.

Franco, who lived at 115 Allen st., was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., and came to Jamestown in 1943 as an accountant for Jamestown Finishes, Inc., a post he held for more than 20 years.

Surviving are his widow, Lucille; three sons, John, Robert, and Thomas, all of Jamestown; four brothers, Anthony and William of Brooklyn; Dr. Angelo Franco of New Berlin, N.Y.; and Rocco of Glenrose, L.I.; and a sister, Mrs. Albert Grello of Queens, L.I.

He was a member of St. James Church and was active in its Holy Name Society, a past grand knight of the Knights of Columbus Council No. 926 and was serving as its treasurer at the time of his death.

His political career in Jamestown began in 1955 when he was elected to the city council after the administration of former mayor Stanley Weeks. In 1957, he again proved to be one of the big vote getters in the city and was reelected to the council, but in 1959 he lost in a contest for mayor to Carl S. Sanford. He was reelected to the

Teamster Talks To Resume Today; Lockout in Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — An effort to break the impasse in negotiations between major trucking employers and the Teamsters Union will be made today by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

This was announced last night as Trucking Employers Inc., representing companies which handle 65 per cent of the country's trucking business, said a shutdown in the dispute between the union and the companies was 100 per cent effective.

The union meanwhile ordered its members not to interfere with any companies which continue to function in the face of the lockout called by TEI.

Talks between the Teamsters and the trucking organization had ended at 4 a.m. yesterday after prolonged efforts to achieve a settlement of the basic issue, wages. Negotiations had not resumed yesterday.

In announcing that federal mediators will talk with TEI representatives, a mediation service spokesman said mediators may meet with Teamsters representatives later in the day. There was no indication when the next face-to-face meeting between the two sides would be held.

Gordon Knapp, public relations director for Trucking Employers Inc., said his organization's members are cooperating 100 per cent in the shutdown which went into effect at midnight, local time, Saturday night.

TEI has some 1,500 members and handles about 65 per cent of the nation's trucking business. About 12,000 firms with 450,000 employees are involved in the dispute which centers on wages. They range now from $3.25 to $5 an hour.

In a telegram sent to 360 Teamsters Union locals, Frank Fitzsimmons, Teamsters general vice president, said: "The employers who are members of Trucking Employers, Inc. have decided to lock out their employes in an effort to beat down our attempts to get an honorable settlement for our members.

They also hope to get a Taft-Hartley injunction against us. This is vicious anti-labor action. You are instructed not to interfere with any trucking company which continues to operate."

"With negotiations at a standstill, the next question is what is Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and the White House going to do? I understand the question is under very active consideration at the Labor Department," Knapp said.

The White House continued its silence on the dispute. Advised of Knapp's report of activity at the Labor Department, a department spokesman said he knew of none.

Under the Taft-Hartley procedures, a specially appointed presidential board must advise the chief executive that a work stoppage is creating an emergency endangering the public welfare. The President, if he accepts the findings, then asks the attorney general to seek the 80-day injunction in federal court.

Apollo Tragedy Traced to Wire

By HOWARD BENEDICT
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — In a massive, 3,000-page final report on the Apollo 1 fire, a blue ribbon board of review said yesterday a bruised or broken wire was the most likely cause of the blaze. It sharply criticized the Apollo team for poor management and for failing to adequately consider the safety of the astronauts.

The eight-man board, climaxing seven weeks of exhaustive investigation, said the probe of the Jan. 27 fire disclosed "many deficiencies in design and engineering, manufacture and quality control" by both the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and industrial contractors.

Sloppy workmanship also was cited. Killed when a flash fire raced through their cabin during a launch pad test were Air Force Lt. Gen. Virgil I. Grissom, veteran of Mercury and Gemini flights; Air Force Lt. Col. Edward H. White II, America's first space walker, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee, a rookie.

The board said the Apollo team failed to recognize that "the test conditions were extremely hazardous" and as a result there were no emergency, fire-fighting or rescue procedures on the pad.

Several recommendations were made for redesigning the spacecraft, including a quick escape hatch, use of fewer combustible materials and improvements in the electrical, communications and life support systems.

The board said extensive fire damage in the charred Apollo 1 cabin made it impossible to pinpoint the exact cause of the fire. But it said the most likely source was an electrical arc or short circuit in wiring under the seat of command pilot Grissom, in the area of the environmental control unit.

Humphrey Believes Mission Succeeds Beyond Expectations

By JOHN W. FINNEY
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
BRUSSELS — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey believes his diplomatic mission to Europe has succeeded beyond expectations in opening the door to the resolution of disarmament and economic issues dividing the North Atlantic alliance.

In two weeks of talks with European leaders he believes he has removed European concerns about a diminishing American interest in the alliance and has convinced the allies of a continuing American commitment to Western Europe.

The vice president's views became known here yesterday as he prepared to wind up his tour and return to the United States today.

Beyond such reassurances—the overriding objective of his mission on behalf of President

Johnson — Humphrey believes he has made some specific diplomatic gains in improving the prospects for the Kennedy round of tariff negotiations, in impressing upon the European leaders the need for a multinational food aid program by the developed nations to assist the impoverished nations and in checking the resistance building up among some of the European allies against a nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

When the mission began, Humphrey is known to have had doubts about how much could be accomplished in two weeks of peripatetic personal diplomacy. As he prepares to return to report to President Johnson, he is said to be convinced that the diplomatic results of his trip were far better than had been expected.

This opinion is apparently shared by the White House, which after an initial apparent lack of interest in publicizing the Humphrey mission is now prepared to greet him with fanfare upon his return. The Vice President arranged to delay his return by one day so he could be greeted by Johnson with ceremonies and speeches on the White House lawn.

Humphrey, whose ebullient pace has been slowed somewhat, apparently by some oysters eaten in Paris, relaxed yesterday. He conferred for less than one hour with Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, the supreme allied commander in Europe.

His only official duty was to lay a wreath at the tomb of the unknown soldier in the heart of Brussels. Once again he was greeted by small groups of chanting, egg-throwing demonstrators.

Oscar Presentation Tonight: With or Without TV

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Stars yesterday rehearsed the year's movie cliffhanger, the Academy Awards—will they or won't they be televised?

Master of ceremonies Bob Hope and such beauties as Raquel Welch and Ann-Margret went through their paces, hopeful that New York negotiations would end the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists' strike, now in its 12th day.

Without a weekend settlement, ABC conceded, tonight's presentations would be seen by only the 2,558 persons seated in Santa Monica Civic Auditorium. The network estimated 70 million television viewers saw last year's awards.

Some 360 ABC employees—granted special dispensation by AFTRA to prepare and rehearse the show — continued $280,000 worth of auditorium location work that involved—

- + Ten cameras.
- + Several hundred lights, many hung from the ceiling to illuminate the audience.
- + Thirty television monitor screens in control and news rooms.

On stage, moving scenery depicts the four seasons, where performers such as Mitzi Gaynor, John Davidson and the Young Americans will entertain. The background: ivy-covered arches, twinkling with lights.

For cuts to the audience, large photos of stars with their names underneath in big letters have been posted in the polished folding chairs for practice by television cameramen.

Elizabeth Taylor and husband Richard Burton reported they won't make it to the awards from their movie shooting site in France, California's Gov. Ronald Reagan, former president of the Screen Actors Guild, is expected as are President Johnson's daughter Lynda Bird and her actor escort George Hamilton.

The 39th annual awards of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences were summarized this way Friday by Borne Greene, star of television's "Bonanza," at a Publicists Guild luncheon: "It's when Hollywood holds the Academy Awards in Santa Monica to decide which was the best picture made last year in Europe."

A probably winner, "A Man For All Seasons," was indeed filmed in England. But its top competitor is a domestic product, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

Nominated also were "The Sand Pebbles,"

"Alfie" and "The Russians Are Coming, the Russians Are Coming."

Favorites for best actor are Paul Scofield of "Man for All Seasons" and Richard Burton of "Virginia Woolf."

Other nominees: Alan Arkin, "The Russians Are Coming"; Steve McQueen, "Sand Pebbles," and Michael Caine, "Alfie."

Lynn Redgrave of "Georgy Girl" seems the likely winner among three British-born actresses nominated for best actress acclaim, the others being Elizabeth Taylor of "Virginia Woolf" and Lynn Redgrave's sister Vanessa of "Morgan." Others nominated: French actress Anouk Aimee for "A Man and a Woman" and Polish actress Ida Kaminska for Czechoslovakia's "The Shop on Main Street."

As he drove up to the tomb, perhaps 50 to 100 demonstrators in a crowd of 300 persons began chanting "Vietnam" and "assassin," tossed anti-American leaflets and unleashed a barrage of eggs. One egg fell on top of his limousine and splattered over Glenn Weaver, chief of the vice-presidential secret service detail.

American officials said that as in the earlier demonstrations in Rome, Florence, Berlin, London and Paris, the demonstration here is believed to have been organized and staged by the Maoist faction of the Communist party.

Because the lockout became effective on a Sunday it was hard to gauge even its preliminary effects on national life.

Knapp pointed out that industrial workers depending on truck-delivered raw materials would be the first to feel the shutdown. He said the effect on consumers would be in most cases a delayed one felt only after merchants' stocks are depleted due to the non-arrival of goods shipped by truck.

First Warren County Spelling Champs Crowned on Television

In a telecast over WSEE-TV, Erie, yesterday afternoon, the three divisional winners of the first Warren County National Spelling Bee finally emerged through stiff competition.

Winners of the event sponsored by the Warren Times-Mirror and Observer and Sheffield Observer were:

—Elementary schools: Jonathan Benson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Benson of 115 Oak st., representing Jefferson School.

—Junior high schools: Amy Harbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Harbert of 422 Fourth ave., representing Beatty Junior High School.

—Parochial schools: Cheryl Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Brown of 34 Fuller ave., representing St. Joseph's School.

The three first place winners now go on to Pennsylvania finals contest, to be televised in Pittsburgh with time and date to be announced later. In case one is prevented from participating, the runner up in his classification will be eligible to compete.

Each of the three first-place winners were awarded a $25 U.S. Savings Bond and a matched pen and pencil set, specially inscribed to commemorate the event. Jonathan Benson won an Encyclopaedia Britannica World Atlas, Amy Harbert won a two-volume Lincoln Library, modern reference work, and a full year's service of Encyclopaedia Britannica sound films.

Cheryl Brown won an Encyclopaedia Britannica 1967 Book of the Year.

First runners up, each of whom won a Thorndyke-Barnhardt High School Dictionary are: elementary: John McGraw, Tidioute School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGraw, Tidioute. Junior high school: Bob Lasher, Beatty Junior High; son of Dr. and Mrs. John W. Lasher, 10 Hertzelt st., Parochial school: Mark Donick, St. Joseph School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Donick, 311 West Fifth ave.

Second runners up, each awarded a Thorndyke-Barnhardt High School Dictionary: elementary: Kathy Fink, Lincoln School; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Fink, RD 1, Clarendon. Junior high school: Candy Sprandle, Sheffield Junior High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Sprandle, Sheffield. Parochial: Cheryl Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Brown of 34 Fuller ave., representing St. Joseph's School.

The program was video taped at 1 p.m. Saturday and telecast over WSEE-TV at 12:30 p.m. yesterday.

The event was a first in several ways. This was the first time any of the young people participating had ever been on television. It was the first Warren County National Spelling Contest. It was, so far as is known, the first county-wide spelling contest.

Lee Warthman reminded his young contestants they are also one of the few groups participating throughout the nation in the national spelling contest who appear on television for their finals. Plans are already being made for the 1968 Warren County contest.

Regarding the electrical malfunction as a probable cause, the report said that it found numerous examples of poor installation, design and workmanship in the spacecraft wiring.

As an example it released a picture showing a wrench socket that inadvertently had been left wedged among several wire cables.

The wrench socket was in the area where the fire is believed to have started, but the board did not link it with the blaze.

It said that the fire is believed to have started in the left-hand equipment bay "where the environmental control system instrumentation power wiring leads into the area between the environmental control unit and the oxygen panel."

The report said there were many combustible materials in this area of Apollo 1.

Budget

states at the time of last fall's freeze order.

Funds to finance the federal construction of a Coast Guard cutter and projects under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Agriculture Department and the Tennessee Valley Authority were also released.

The President's order will permit contracts to be signed for the various projects involved. Very little of the money only $9 million—is actually expected to be spent in the current fiscal year, which ends June 30. Thus the order will have very little impact on the federal budget deficit for this year, which is now unofficially estimated at about $8.5 billion.

Much of the impact on business activity will be felt as soon as the various contracts are let, however, inasmuch as this is the time when contractors begin purchasing materials and hiring workers.

JamestownBank Stockholders Vote on Merger

JAMESTOWN — Stockholders of First National Bank of Jamestown and three other banks will soon receive proxy materials by mail on the proposed formation of a bank holding company to be known as Lincoln First Group Inc.

Each share of stock in the First National Bank of Jamestown will be worth 2,267 shares in the new holding company. Combined assets of $1.1 billion will be created if the holding company is approved. If approved it will operate 87 bank offices in central and western New York.

The proposal has already met with favor from the necessary agencies of both the state and federal government.

Navy Chaplain

Addresses Local

Church Gathering

Following a 7:30 a.m. Communion service at First Presbyterian Church Sunday, Commander Robert W. Odell, Flotilla TWO Staff Chaplain who is homeported at Submarine Base, New London, Conn., was guest speaker. About 100 men from various churches attended.

After describing the work of a Navy chaplain aboard a modern Polaris Submarine, Chaplain Odell dramatized the healing by Jesus of the man blind from birth, making the miracle contemporary and compelling in its message of faith.

In preliminary remarks, he addressed the men who had served in the Armed Forces of the U.S. at any time since 1940, observing the tremendous changes. Even within the past five years he said everything has changed so radically that the services would hardly be recognizable today to anyone who has not witnessed the revolutionary developments.

Shurl Glass was master of ceremonies at the Communion breakfast. Singing of hymns was led by Bob Dietsch, with accompaniment by the Rev. Donald H. Spencer.

Ladies of the congregation prepared the breakfast. It was served by young men of the Presbyterian Church-sponsored Boy Scout Troop 8.

Communion service was conducted by the Revs. Donald H. Spencer and Frank R. Churchill Jr. Music was by Minister of Music Carroll Fowler.

White House Wants Changes In Federal Antipoverty Law

By MARJORIE HUNTER
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Seeking to smooth congressional critics, the administration will ask today that the antipoverty law be sharply revised to prevent future abuses.

Scouting Show A Success

Attendance estimates were higher than were originally expected Saturday when more than 2,500 interested persons viewed the various projects of area scouts in their "Scouting in Action" show in the local armory.

Scouts manned their projects for eight hours.

Scout Troops 29 of Youngsville and 6 of Warren provided aroma to the armory with fresh pancakes and chili.

The explorer post sponsored by the U.S. Forest Service presented a thorough survey on deer management and feeding while Explorer Post 2, led by Don Pearson and Paul Myers, tested driver reactions of the public.

Post 52 with Tom Socha, as advisor, demonstrated and instructed on basic procedures of first aid, including artificial respiration.

Post 23, advised by Larry Fox, allowed visitors to test their marksmanship at a rifle range.

Even the cub scouts got into the act as they had projects dealing with everything from racers to a newly created rocket derby.

Visitors reacted favorably to the show of rope climbing, riflery, mapping, crafts, games and other forestry displays and indications are that more shows of creativity will be presented.

Sugar Grove Man's Condition 'Good' Following Accident

A Sugar Grove man, Elmer Welch, 29, was listed in good condition last night in Jameson General Hospital, following a Saturday afternoon traffic accident in which he was thrown from a vehicle.

State police at Warren substation stated Welch was a passenger in a car operated by James Nobles of Pleasant st., Sugar Grove, when the car skidded across Route 69 near that community, travelled onto the berm, struck a slight embankment and rolled over, coming to a rest on its wheels.

Nobles was reported uninjured in the mishap.

Welch received multiple scalp and forehead lacerations and a jaw fracture. Police reported 120 sutures were required to close the cuts.

Damage in the accident was estimated at $600.

poverty programs.

The proposals would also provide for greater state participation, increased emphasis on job training and placement, and expansion of antipoverty programs in rural areas.

Officials of the Office of Economic Opportunity, which administers the antipoverty program, concede that the proposed changes would make the law "less useful" as an instrument of "trying, testing and learning."

However, officials say that there would still be "flexibility for needed innovation" and that the revised law would be "better suited to the complexities of effective and efficient administration."

Despite the administration's willingness to have tighter controls written into the law, the antipoverty program faces serious trouble in Congress this year.

It is expected that strong efforts will be made to dismantle the O.E.O. and transfer its programs into such departments as Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

If this failed, the administration still would face an uphill fight for the $2.06 billion that President Johnson has asked for the antipoverty program in the fiscal year starting July 1.

Even the preceding Congress, far more in sympathy with administration aims than this one, trimmed the President's antipoverty request by $138 million, appropriating $1.6 billion for the current fiscal year.

The present House has 59 new Republican members. Most of them replaced liberal Democrats. An Associated Press poll yesterday of 53 of these 59 Republican freshmen showed 45 opposed to increased funds for antipoverty; three in favor of the increase; and five undecided.

Many of the proposed changes in the antipoverty law seek to answer specific criticisms the program has encountered in its less than three years of often turbulent existence.

Officials of the O.E.O. say that many of the proposed changes already are being carried out administratively.

By asking now that they be spelled out in the law, the agency is apparently attempting to give members of Congress the opportunity to tell the most outspoken critics in their home districts, "Look now we've tightened things up to avoid any more abuses."

The recent disclosure of the fiscal irregularity of Haryou Act, an antipoverty program in New York City's Harlem district largely triggered the decision to ask that annual auditing and other tighter monetary controls be written into the law.

The proposed change to screen out trouble makers from the Job Corps was prompted by numerous incidents of misconduct and scrapes with police at some of the urban and rural centers. However, there have been no recent incidents of this kind at the 117 Job Corps centers in which about 35,000 young men and women are enrolled for job training. Only one of the centers, at St. Petersburg, Fla., has been closed.

Under the proposed change, persons with records of "violent antisocial behavior" would be barred from the Job Corps.

Tempo of War Increases On Weekend's Fights

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
SAIGON (AP) — The tempo of the war increased over the weekend, with sharp fighting on the central coast and stepped-up aerial bombardment of North Vietnam that sent fireballs and smoke clouds billowing 2,500 to 5,000 feet into the air, U.S. naval patrols shelled barge traffic along the North's coast.

The sharpest ground fight resulted from a Communist cat-and-mouse attack Saturday on two platoons — about 55 men — of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division on what was presumed to be a routine patrol in the An Lao Valley of coastal Binh Dinh Province.

Firing from high ground, the Communists killed 19 cavalrymen and wounded 27. But coordinated ground and air counterattacks repulsed the Communists. The U.S. Command said the enemy left 63 dead on the battlefield. Blood trails indicated the Reds carried off other dead or wounded.

An enemy sniper bullet came near to hitting Gen. John Tolson, commander of the 1st Cavalry. He was flying overhead in a helicopter directing the counterattack when the bullet shattered the windshield nine inches from the general.

U.S. Air Force F100 Super Sabre jets, gunship helicopters and artillery fire supported counterattacking troops on the ground. The jets laid down a blanket of fire within 50 yards of the two pinned-down platoons.

Another unit of the 1st Cavalry lost nine killed and 15 wounded in a Red mortar attack and following attack by a company of 150 Red guerrillas. The mortar attack damaged several light artillery spotter planes and helicopters. The Red assault was beaten off with eight known enemy dead.

U.S. military headquarters reported the uncovering of three major Communist underground installations Saturday. Just 12 miles north of Saigon an underground hospital was found in a 500-yard-long tunnel complex.

In coastal Phuoc Tuy Province east of Saigon, another major tunnel complex was uncovered with a Red weapons cache including 100 Claymore mines, 50,000 rounds of ammunition and stocks of rifles, submachine guns and other arms.

Near Pleiku in the central highlands, infantrymen found a complex of 250 bunkers which had a spring-fed underground water supply.

The fighting reflected the intensified action throughout the nation.

The Communists were sticking to their battle doctrine of attacking only when apparently assured of success. This was the tactic used Thursday in a surprise raid on the city of Quang Tri in South Vietnam's northernmost province.

The air war flared anew with 103 missions over the North and five B52 raids in the South on Saturday and yesterday. The Stratofortresses hit suspected

Air Force and Navy pilots blasted Communist targets all along the Red supply network, including one strike in the Red River Valley only 60 miles from the Red Chinese border.

Despite continuing bad weather, returning pilots reported some evidently spectacular bomb damage. West of Dong Hoi, Thailand-based jet pilots hit what was probably an ammunition dump that erupted into a red fireball rising 5,000 feet. In the area of the Mu Gia Pass, which funnels traffic into the Ho Chi Minh Trail, a cloud of black smoke billowed 2,500 feet into the air after a truck convoy was hit.

Off the North Vietnamese coast, three U.S. destroyers shelled coastal barge traffic and came under Communist artillery fire but the Navy reported none was hit.

Conservationists Vary Predictions

By LAWRENCE E. DAVIES
SAN FRANCISCO — Conservationists looking to the nation's future ranged from mild optimists to prophets of catastrophe at the 10th Biennial Wilderness Conference here this past weekend.

Further sharp battles with commercial interests were foreseen before federal agencies and Congress complete by 1974 the classification of perhaps 50 million acres now administered by agencies like the Forest Service, the National Park Service, and the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife as wilderness areas.

This acreage, roughly equivalent to the combined land areas of Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey, would, under the Wilderness Act of 1964, have no public automobile roads. Ideally, there would be no helicopters, motor boats, power saws or any other motorized equipment, although some agency heads contended that some equipment would have to be used for administrative purposes.

Dr. George Marshall, president of the Sierra Club, sponsor of the conference in the Hilton Hotel, said that steps should be taken before 1974 and to add to wilderness candidates some of the Brooks Range land in northern Alaska, areas in the Grand Canyon-Lake Mead region, the Lincoln Back Country and Jewel Basin in northwestern Montana and the Upper Kern River drainage in California.

Marshall, with several others, cautioned against "the use of mechanical equipment for administrative convenience, the construction of 8 per cent grade trails, a tendency to try to make wilderness safe for anyone who enters it but dangerous for any insect that may attack a commercial species, the continuance of the Superannuated Mining Act of 1872, and the demographic theory that there may be no limitation on the number of people entering a wilderness."

Edward P. Cliff, chief of the U. S. Forest Service, cited strong resistance to efforts to maintain the wilderness environment.

"Packers," he said, "want to use power saws to clear trails and cut firewood. Mining companies want to use helicopters extensively in the high country where the field season is short. Other public agencies want to use equipment to do their work most efficiently—whether it is measuring snow packs or planting trout."

Anthony Wayne Smith, president and general counsel of the National Parks Association, said the nation seemed to be headed for "the greatest disaster in conservation history." The "disaster," he said, was threatened by plans prepared for wilderness hearings by agencies like the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, attached to the President's Council on Recreation and Natural Beauty.

"The disaster consists in the fact that the parks are about to be subdivided into small wilderness areas and large facility areas," Smith said. He also opposed plans "for visitor areas, euphemistically known as threshold areas, within which increasing crowds can be accommodated in the years ahead."

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A joint U.S.-Mexican study group says it would be feasible to build an atomic plant to produce electricity and desalted water for northern Mexico and the U.S. Southwest. The scientists held three sessions here last week and discussed several locations. Another meeting is planned for later this year.

Enough Time Has Gone By

An officer of Warren Borough Council at a gathering some weeks ago agreed that it was time the local governing body took notice to the needs of urban renewal and acted accordingly.

"Accordingly," it was assumed, meant that council should be aware of the ordinances and codes that require passage before Warren's redevelopment programs can make any progress.

The so-called "workable" program of the Warren Redevelopment Authority's first effort—the Liberty street project which will develop a parking lot in the business district and includes plans for an industrial (business) building—was certified by the federal government way back in October of 1965.

It has been a known fact that the federal government, which financially supports urban renewal projects,

JAMES RESTON

The Cult of Virility

SANTIAGO, Chile—A remarkable event is now taking place in Chile. The liberal President of this Roman Catholic country, Eduardo Frei, who has plenty of political problems without adding the controversial question of birth control, is now receiving the delegates to the eighth World Conference of the International Planned Parenthood Federation. This could not have happened here a year or so ago and few Presidents in Latin America, even with the ambiguous support of Pope Paul, would dare open such a conference now.

But the family planners are here from all over the world, brought together, as Lord Caradon of Britain told them, "by a sense of danger, indeed by a sense of potential disaster on a scale never before imagined."

Latin America is the most dramatic symbol of this gloomy vision. It is in a race with the pace of history. It is making progress in the production of food and industrial and consumer goods but its production of people is outrunning everything else.

It has a higher birth rate than any other large area of the world, higher even than India's. It has a population of about 200 million now, which will be 300 million in the seventies. Larger than the United States or the Soviet Union now, the best estimates for the end of the century put its population then at between 600 and 700 million.

Even the present population is beyond the control of the best government in this part of the world. Almost two-thirds of the people living below the Rio Grande today are existing on 1,200 calories a day, which is half of the adequate diet level. (The U.S. average is 3,100.) The per capita income in Latin America is about $250 a year. The illiteracy rate is 65 per cent and the people are choking the cities before they have conquered them. And forces of government affect all this very little. Dictators, military juntas, Social Democrats, liberals like Frei here in Chile—all have the same problem and all are running behind.

Chile has the most liberal birth control policy in Latin America. It permits the distribution of birth control information and contraceptive devices (though not the intrauterine coil). But poverty, religion, ignorance and fear still create an almost unmanageable problem.

It is illegal to have an abortion in Chile, but abortion is a flourishing business at $20 an operation. And for every 250,000 live births a year in this country there are an estimated 150,000 abortions. Yet the annual population growth of 2.4 per cent is running well ahead of the 1.9 per cent growth of food prodemands passage of zoning ordinances, building, wiring, electrical and plumbing codes that meet its specifications. To date only the zoning ordinances have met with council's approval.

While it is customary to have the workable program—the first step in federal-supported urban renewal—recertified each year, Warren has received a waiver on the Liberty street project. But it has only until June 11 to be recertified.

This means Warren Borough Council had better start taking steps at tonight's monthly meeting to see that action gets started on seeing the necessary codes get passed in time.

Each day's delay can mean months of waiting. And the Liberty street project is only "number one" of those needed to make Warren be and look like a progressive community.

Let there be no misunderstanding about this key point: you, as an individual, still can earn a considerably higher interest rate on savings you place in special commercial bank accounts or in thrift institutions than on U.S. "E" bonds or notes. A 5 per cent rate is still commonplace on commercial bank consumer-type certificates of deposit and on savings accounts in thrift institutions. With compound interest, this annual rate can work out to substantially more over a period of time.

In contrast, the return you earn on E bonds if you hold them to maturity in seven years is 4.15 per cent and the return you will earn on the new Freedom Shares is 4.74 per cent if you hold them to maturity in 4½ years. What's more, if you cash in your E bond or savings note earlier than maturity, you'll earn much less. An E bond pays you only 3.01 per cent if you redeem it after one year; the new note is not redeemable for a full year and then if cashed, it pays you 4.01 per cent.

But interest rates are now heading down across the board. A real question is for how long a time the financial institutions offering you the rich rates today will pledge to continue paying them.

This is the area in which the E bond and savings note are making headway, for the Treasury guarantees to pay you the 4.15 per cent and 4.74 per cent for the lives of the securities. It also permits you to postpone paying Federal income tax on the interest accumulated until you actually redeem your bonds and notes. (Both are exempt from state and local taxes too.)

May 1 marks the kickoff date for 1967's "Share in Freedom" savings bond drive, with war and patriotism themes. Although about 9,000,000 of us already are enrolled under payroll savings or bond-a-month plans, the target for this year is to sign up one out of every two employees not buying bonds regularly under payroll savings plans and to obtain increased purchases from one out of two employees now under the plans.

The E bond is a familiar savings medium, though. The razzle-dazzle lies in the new note. Here are some major facts. You'll be able to buy the notes only if you are already buying E bonds regularly under a payroll savings or bond-a-month plan or if you now sign up under either.

You will be limited in your purchases to a maximum of $81 a month. This $81 will bring you $100 armaturity in 4½ years. There is an annual limit on your holdings too: $1,350 face amount of notes originally issued in any one year.

You will get an overall net return of 4.39 per cent if you hold your E bonds and notes to their full maturities. You will earn a net of 4.58 per cent if you cash in your E bonds after their required two-month holding period and hold your notes for 4½ years.

Because of the severe limits on purchases and holdings of the notes and because other interest rates are obviously more than competitive, there is no danger of any massive outflow of funds from savings institutions to these Treasury securities.

But if you decide to discipline yourself into systematic saving of some of your new funds via U.S. savings bonds and notes, you will be getting historically high interest from the U.S. Government, interest guaranteed for the life of your securities and non-taxable until you cash in.

However the Philadelphia law maker made a plea for greater coverage of the legislature by the newspapermen present.

"I dare say that 90 out of every 100 voters will not know the name of their representative," he said. "In my opinion this lack of information seriously saps the strength of the state legislative branch and undermines the members in the proper function in the government."

At the end, he asked that he be invited back—perhaps after four more years—to give another progress report on press-legislature relationships!

It just might be a good quadrennial habit to develop.

curately report the news as it actually occurred on Capitol Hill in Harrisburg and has failed to deal equitably with legislators by drawing up characterizations that were unfair.

"As to the reporting of news events, I felt that on too many occasions the happenings in the legislature were colored by the political philosophy of the papers, either the working press or the editors, at the sacrifice of accuracy. I also felt that the general image of the legislators was painted as that of an indolent, inept, unqualified boob who could not obtain gainful employment elsewhere."

Today, Mr. Fineman said, "These complaints no longer exist." He added:

"For the most part there has been honest reporting and editorializing, based on situations as they have factually occurred and I have seen no current printed degradations of the legislator or his role in the scheme of state governments. For this, I am particularly grateful to the press."

He also told the best story of the convention, officially labeled "The Newspaper Editors' Seminar on State Government."

SYLVIA PORTER

On U.S. Savings Notes

When the Treasury's new "Freedom Shares" go on sale for the first time three weeks from today, May 1, they'll be a much more attractive medium for your long-term savings than the Treasury planned or competitive thrift institutions anticipated as recently as 60 days ago.

In fact, as far as savings institutions across the country are concerned, the "nicest" thing about the new U.S. Savings notes well may turn out to be the stiff restrictions on how many you can buy or hold.

Let there be no misunderstanding about this key point: you, as an individual, still can earn a considerably higher interest rate on savings you place in special commercial bank accounts or in thrift institutions than on U.S. "E" bonds or notes. Battle Over Support of LBJ

WASHINGTON—Speculation has been rife in the diplomatic corps as to whether the Senate Foreign Relations Committee rebuff of President Johnson regarding an advance endorsement of foreign aid for Latin America will pull the rug out from under LBJ at the conference as it opens Wednesday. Here are some backstage events which the diplomats may not know:

R's already known that the President, in a special effort to consult with Congress, had summoned 40 Senators and Representatives to a private session at the White House last month.

At this meeting, the President laid it firmly on the line that he didn't have to have an advance resolution of support, but he went from member to member asking each if this was what they wanted. Not one expressed opposition.

Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, however, did not attend.

Having decided that there should be a joint Congressional resolution approving the President's goals prior to the summit meeting, the President then asked that it be passed before Easter. However, both Fulbright and Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., dragged their feet.

At one closed-door meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., chairman of the Latin American subcommittee, reminded Fulbright that there should be action on the resolution.

"This is pressure," growled Gore of Tennessee.

"How is it pressure?" asked Morse.

"You know how," replied Gore. He added that the Senate was supposed to ratify the space treaty, and he resented White House pressure to get action on the Summit Conference resolution.

Morse, not considered a great champion of LBJ, then moved to proceed with the Pan American resolution. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, then moved that the committee act on the space treaty first. The vote was 10 to 5 against Church and for Morse.

Gore then moved another motion to support the chairman. Finally Sen. Cliff Case, R-N.J., suggested a gentlemen's agreement whereby there was one day of hearings on the space treaty, then consideration of the summit resolution.

At the space treaty hearing, Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, was the chief witness. Gruening is against the space treaty but is a strong advocate of better understanding between Pan American nations. It became obvious that he was being used to filibuster against the Pan American resolution. Finally, toward the end of the day, Morse remonstrated: "We can't let Latin Americans down. This resolution is no Tonkin Bay resolution. It doesn't bind us to anything, except we say to Latin Americans that if you go ahead and help yourselves with land reform, agriculture, highways, tax reform, we will then support you. The resolution even includes the wording 'accordance with Constitutional processes.'"

By this time only John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky and Chairman Fulbright remained. It was too late to pass the resolution before Easter.

At a subsequent post-Easter session, Morse found himself with most of the President's defenders absent. He moved a postponement. "Is the Senator from Oregon trying to get this postponed so he can get more pressure from the White House?" asked Chairman Fulbright sarcastically.

"No," replied Morse, "so you and Hickenlooper (Republican Senator from Iowa) can go down to the White House and see the President for consultation to see whether he wants this kind of a resolution passed," referring to Fulbright's gutted draft.

"What are you going to do?" continued Morse.

"Slap the President in the face? It's unthinkable to send him to Punta del Este without a resolution of support."

"I think it's bad taste, it's discourteous, it's improper to send a resolution of this kind to the floor of the Senate without consultation with the President," concluded the President's one-time chief critic.

At this point Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., spoke up to argue that the Fulbright redraft was the best that could be passed. He suggested that this resolution be acted on and then go to conference with the House, which had already passed a suitable resolution.

"I protest against these shocking steamroller tactics," remonstrated Morse. "The opposition refuses to wait till other Senators can be present."

"This is not consultation," continued Morse. "You kick the President when he doesn't consult with you, and when he does, you kick him again."

However, Morse was overruled. The Fulbright resolution drastically modifying the original White House resolution was passed.

"I now move that the transcript of this hearing be made public," proposed Morse. There was shocked hesitation around the committee room. Finally Fulbright said: "Okay, subject to the privilege of editing."

"What does that mean?" asked Morse. "Correcting grammar or deleting things you fellows wish you hadn't said?"

There was no answer. But next day Sparkman said it would be bad precedent to publish the transcript.

"We have never done it before," he said. "You don't want the public to read the record of how you double-crossed the President?" remarked Morse. "Mr. Chairman, I object. There is no quorum present."

"Then I lay my motion on the table," said Sparkman.

This was done. The motion not to publish the full transcript of the closed-door debate is now on the table. You can be fairly sure the transcript will never be made public unless drastically censored.

West of the Mississippi, there was strong isolationist sentiment. "Keep out of Europe" was another slogan. It appeared as though the United States had no desire to fight. The Germans, fighting a trench stalemate on the Western Front, felt that Great Britain could be brought to her knees by unrestricted submarine warfare.

Two notes from the U.S. had warned Germany against it. Now the mood of America was "Non-Involvement." In fact, President Woodrow Wilson had sent his confidant, Colonel Edward House, to Europe as a mediator to ascertain on what terms Britain and France on the one hand, and Germany and Austria on the other, would sit at a peace table with him.

As he had been misjudged in intent, so Wilson misjudged the others. House asked Sir Edward Grey to draft secret terms for peace with Germany. "Should the Allies accept this proposal and should Germany refuse it," he said, "the United States would probably enter the war against Germany."

England couldn't lose. They stiffened their terms. The Kaiser, hearing of it, sent an invitation to Wilson to start peace negotiations. The American President kept these matters secret until his re-election was assured. The Germans waited from September 1916 until Jan. 9, 1917.

All they heard from Wilson was a public speech planning a league of nations. No one power, he said, should dominate the land or the sea. The world must "have peace without victory." The President also said: "There is such a thing as a nation being too proud to fight." Words.

ART BUCHWALD

The 'Non' Candidate

WASHINGTON—This is the time of year when everyone is checking on the 1968 Republican nominees for President. It isn't easy when you speak to them to guess their intentions, as I discovered talking to one politician whose good name has been bandied about.

"Sir," I said, "your name has been mentioned as a possible Presidential candidate for 1968. What do you have to say about this?"

"It's absolute nonsense. I have enough to do serving the good people of my state for the next four years and I have no Presidential aspirations at this time."

"But there have been 20 Giotz for President offices opened up around the country," I said. "Twenty-three, to be exact. There are two more opening next week. I would like to say I strongly disapprove of these activities started by many well-meaning supporters. I have repeatedly told them at fundraising dinners, rallies and press conferences that I am not interested in running for the Presidential office in 1968. Unfortunately, I cannot control what any private citizen wants to do on his own."

"Yes, sir. I went to your campaign headquarters at 1750 Pennsylvania Ave."

"You mean 1755, don't you? The phone number is Arizona 2-3456. What about it?"

"Well, they seemed to indicate that you had no objection to their starting the handwagon rolling at this time."

"Well, they're wrong. I told them at a strategy meeting the other night that I did not wish to be considered a candidate and I would hope they'd respect my wishes in this respect. I further told them I would only accept nonpolitical speeches to GOP delegates and Young Republican clubs. I reminded them there were so many better candidates than myself."

"Whom did you mention?"

"Gov. Klomk, for example. You know, the one who bankrupted his state. I think he'd make a fine candidate."

"Who else?"

"Sen. Zap. He's young, attractive, has tremendous sex appeal and I don't think his inexperience in government should be held against him."

"That's very fair of you."

"Then there's Sen. Zlich, who certainly has a great deal of strength in the Black Power areas. I could support Sen. Zlich with a clear conscience, even though I would hate the religious issue to come up in 1968."

"What about former Vice-President Zimmer?"

"Zimmer has worked very hard for the Republican Party since he was Vice-President and should be given another shot at the big job. The fact he hasn't even been able to get elected to Blue Cross in the last four years should not be considered. He's just had a series of bad breaks."

"Sir, there's some talk that Gov. Rhubarb might be a dark horse candidate."

"I've known Gov. Rhubarb and I have the highest respect for him. I also feel strongly that a man who has been divorced three times would make just as good a candidate as a man who has only been married once, so I hope no one will bring that up at the convention."

"Well, it appears you're really working for other candidates rather than for yourself."

"You bet I am. I promised Ray Bliss that no matter what I did, I would not attack any Republican publicly and endanger our chances in 1968."

"In case of a deadlock, would you consider a draft for yourself?"

"I think I've made my position clear that I am not interested in the job. Of course, if President Eisenhower asked me to run..."

EAGLES HEAR SWOGGER, HOUSTON

Youngsville Sports Fete Speakers Stress Desire

BY LARRY G. STEELE

Sports Editor

Winners were in profusion at Saturday night's Youngsville Sports Banquet, including Jim Houston, linebacker on the former World Champion Cleveland Browns professional football team, John Swogger, head coach of the two-time PIAA Class B State basketball champion Mercer Mustangs and the Eagle athletes who number two undefeated seasons on the gridiron and a District X, Class B track and field title among their accomplishments.

The evening's program was held in the YHS auditorium following a smorgasbord dinner in the cafeteria and was attended by an enthusiastic crowd of Eagle fans and parents, in addition to the athletes, cheerleaders, coaches and other teachers who participate in Youngsville's sports program.

Frank Schumacher was master of ceremonies for the event that included comments by head coaches Toby Shea and Paul Siegel, the introduction of Youngsville's athletes and moves of Mercer in the Class B finals and highlights of the 1966 Eagle football season.

Shea, described tongue-in-cheek by Schumacher as comparable to Superman—"meek and mild mannered"—was the first speaker on the program and pointed out that credit for the 16 straight football victories belonged to the boys.

Citing "the respect and admiration these boys had for each other, as the reason for their success," Shea stated that "No one admires, respects and loves them more than I."

Coach Siegel jokingly reported that Toot Dyer, Youngsville Sports Booster president, "warned me not to take as much time as Coach Shea," then praised his team members for their attitude and desire.

He said he is optimistic about next season because several of the boys were going to attend basketball camp and a local summer program is being instituted. He predicted that the Eagles "are going to be ready next year."

The subject of Swogger's talk centered around dedication and he stated that "You have to have the desire to succeed." He urged the young athletes present to "set your goals high" and recounted his failures at Mercer before winning two State Championships.

Noting that all great athletes have to work hard to attain their goals, Swogger added, "You have to pay the price." A former assistant coach and head basketball coach at Wapum High School, Swogger related a story of a boy he referred to as "Sleeper" who he predicated at the time—wouldn't "amount to a roll of pins." The next time he saw the boy, Swogger said, he was driving a brand new car and had signed a baseball contract for $75,000 while he was earning $3,500 teaching school. The boy, he said, was Richie Allen, Philadelphia Phillies' third baseman.

Commenting on his All-State cager, Bob Rhodes, Swogger reported that he had averaged 25.30 hours on the court year 'round and because "he paid the price" has received 154 scholarship offers.

Meeting former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson had also made an impression on Swogger because of Patterson's sincerity and humility.

In closing, he urged the Eagles to "be humble, sincere have respect and pay the price." He stated that the first thing the colleges ask when calling about a boy was the score on his college boards examination and pointed out that "no one in athletics cares what your last name is, how much money your father makes, what the color of your skin is or what church you attend, only if you're willing to pay the price."

Houston echoed many of Swogger's statements, stating that his own experiences in high school, college and the pros proved that there was no way to get to the top than by sacrifice.

Mentioning the failure of the Browns to repeat as champions Houston said that only 25 of the 40 Cleveland team members had been dedicated. Citing the loss to Pittsburgh as an example, he said he thought Cleveland had the better team, but the Steelers "desired more to win than we did."

Also stressing school work, Houston urged the boys who did not have the ability to earn an athletic scholarship to work for an academic award. "All it takes is a little bit of effort, a little bit of determination," he said.

A product of Massillon, Ohio High School's successful football program, Houston noted that "there's no reason why you can't have the same determination."

Swogger and Shea closed the programs by commenting on films of their respective teams in action.

Small College Stars Win Pan-Am Trials

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Earl Monroe, leading college scorer in the nation this year for Winston-Salem State, led the NAIA All-Stars to the team championship in the Pan American Basketball Trials which concluded at the University of Minnesota yesterday afternoon.

Monroe scored 22 points in the final 14 minutes to pace his NAIA All-Stars to a 77-71 victory over the previously unbeaten Armed Forces team.

Clay Plans 'If' Bout With Milde

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A rematch between heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay and European titleholder Karl Mildenberger is in the offing this year if Clay—also known as Muhammad Ali—can stay out of the Army, a promoter said here yesterday.

Frederick Sommers of Los Angeles, who says he holds exclusive rights to negotiate for a return title bout between Clay and Mildenberger from Clay's managers, said here that the bout would be held in Philadelphia, London or Inglewood, Calif.

The fight also is contingent upon the outcome of the Clay-Floyd Patterson fight slated for April 25, in Las Vegas, Nev., but Sommers said he isn't worried about the outcome of that bout.

"If Muhammad Ali stays out of the U.S. armed forces, it is certain that Clay and Mildenberger will meet again this year," Sommers said.

"Herbert Muhammad Clay's agent gave me an exclusive written agreement for the Mildenberger return bout soon after the Clay-Terrell championship bout last February in Houston, and a few days ago, the signal to start negotiations with promoters interested in staging" the event, said Sommers.

Sommers said he was en route to London for negotiations with the promoters of the previous Clay-Mildenberger bout in Frankfurt, Germany, which Clay won in the 12th round. Mildenberger is rated the No. 1 contender for the title in the latest World Boxing Association ratings.

Gay Brewer Takes '67 Masters Title

Outduels Bobby Nichols; Yancey Fades, Arnie 4th

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Gay Brewer, Jr., the man they said would never come back, wiped out the memory of a 1966 nightmare yesterday and beat out Bobby Nichols in a stirring head-to-head duel for the 31st Masters Golf Championship.

The pug-nosed tiger from Calabas, sinking two long pressure putts on the closing holes, fired a five-under-par 87 in the final round for a score of 280. Nichols, leader through 64 holes, had a 70 for 281.

Brewer, 35, a veteran of 10 years on the tour, thus broke the seven-year stranglehold on the Masters held by Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player.

Nicklaus, the record-holder and three-time winner, watched the last two days as a spectator after failing to make the break. Palmer, charging only mildly, shot a 69 for 285 and Player, who vowed he'd win it, stumbled in with 71 for 287. The gong sounded for one of Ben Hogan's greatest hours. The 54-year-old all-time master, who moved to within two shots of the lead with an amazing 66 Saturday, saw his putting nerves snap again and he wobbled in with a 77 for 290. A year ago Brewer came to the 18th green needing only a par for the title.

However, he three-putted from 40 feet, leaving a five-footer dangling on the lip, and the next day soared to a 78 in a three-way playoff won by Nicklaus with a 70, followed by Tommy Jacobs, 72.

"He'll never win another big one," some observers predicted. "This blowup will leave psychological scars that may last for years."

"I blew it and forgot it," Brewer said. "I don't worry about such things."

Yesterday, with the same situation staring him in the face on the same green, Brewer made sure—and made good with a million dollars in benefits.

His approach was 20 feet from the pin. When Nichols, 25 away, left his birdie try two feet wide, Brewer lagged up to within 18 inches and confidently rammed the ball home. His wife, Carole Lee, a pretty brunette in a pink ostrich feather hat, ran up and planted a kiss on his tanned cheek.

Brewer started the day two strokes behind but overtook Nichols, his playing partner, at the 13th where he birdied and Nichols scrambled out of trap for a par. Brewer sank an 18-foot putt for a birdie at the 14th and saved a birdie at the 15th with a tough, sidehill 10-footer after he had sent his second shot spinning over the green. He finished like a champion. The final day's action, in 80-degree temperatures over the famous 6,980-yard, par 72 Augusta National Course, developed quickly into a four-man duel among Brewer, Nichols, Bert Yancey and 47-year-old Julius Boros.

At one stage shortly after the turn—playing back to back—the four were tied at five under par. Then Brewer made his move and held it.

Dark-horse Bert Yancey, the 28-year-old former West Point wholod at every round and refused to fold, bogeyed the 16th and 17th and finished with a 73 and third money at 284.

Boros, girded with pep pills, held on gamely for 10 holes, then went into a tailspin. He shot a 75 for 286.

This gave him fifth place behind, Palmer.

Boros, twice winner of the National Open and bidding to become the oldest Masters winner, bogeyed the 11th hole and took a double bogey on the treacherous 155-yard 12th where he hit his tee shot into the thick brush back of the green and finally three-putted.

He climaxed his disappointing round with a bogey from a trap at the 18th.

Two of the leading contenders at the 54-hole point blew up. Shots off after the third round, shot a 78 for 292. Tony Jacklin, the 22-year-old English pro who was at 216, had a 77 for 292.

"I guess I am the happiest man in history to win here," Brewer said when he was presented the green coat, coveted symbol of the Masters championship.

The new champion is a rugged six-footer, 165 pounds who looks like a middleweight fighter. He has tremendous shoulders and arms like wagon tongues.

He is one of the game's new breed—a slugger, who always swings from the floor, putting everything into his tee shots. He is bold as a burglar on the greens.

In the traditional post-tournament ceremony, Brewer had the green coat draped over his shoulders by the ex-champion, Nicklaus, Nicklaus blew himself out of the tournament with a second 79 but stayed around to watch the finish.

"I enjoyed seeing the other guys' expressions," Nicklaus said. "It was fun."

Nichols sank a 25-foot putt on the first hole and went three shots ahead of Brewer, but the fighting Ohioan kept plugging away. He picked up a shot at the second and another at the seventh.

Nichols, 30-year-old former PGA champion from Louisville, Ky., stayed ahead through the 10th. Then Brewer pulled even when Nichols bogeyed by missing a 10-foot putt.

Brewer's most important putt—the point where he won the championship—apparently was on the 520-yard 15th.

North Stars Shade South in Eric Tilt

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Connecticut's Wes Bialosuknia sparked a fourth-quarter rally that carried the North to a 113-110 victory over the South Saturday night in an all-star college basketball game.

Bialosuknia finished with 20 points and was voted the game's most valuable player.

BREWER IN COMEBACK

Ray Brewer, blasting out of a trap in a practice round, had little trouble yesterday as he won the 1967 Masters Tournament title by one stroke over Bobby Nichols. Rated only a outside chance of winning the tourney after blowing up in a playoff for the championship last year, Brewer played superb golf yesterday to earn the coveted green Masters coat. Celtics Stay Alive, Trip 76ers at Home, 121-117

By DAVE O'HARA

Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The proud Boston Celtics kept alive slender hopes for a ninth straight National Basketball Association championship by defeating Philadelphia 121-117 yesterday for their first victory in four meetings with the 76ers in the Eastern Division playoff finals.

The Celtics blew a 10-point lead early in the fourth period but battled back and outduelled the 76ers in the stretch to force the best-of-7 playoff series into a fifth game at Philadelphia tomorrow night.

Sharp shooting Sam Jones broke out of a slump and led the Celtics with 32 points, one more than Capt. John Havlicek. Jones nailed down the decision by hitting on a bank shot with 35 seconds left and then cashing a pair of free throws with 17 seconds remaining.

Led by player-coach Bill Russell, who out rebounded Wilt Chamberlain by a 28-22 margin, Boston threw up a tenacious defense to finally master the 76ers, who won the regular season Eastern title by finishing eight games ahead of the Celtics.

The Celtics hit for seven straight points to take a 101-81 lead in the fourth minute of the third period.

However, the 76ers, with rookie Matt Guokas playing a

Meeting Slated By Men Keglers

The Warren (Men's) Bowling Association will meet Saturday, May 20 at 6 p.m. at Bullwinkle Camp on Heart's Content Road. In addition to other business, the election of officers for next season will be conducted.

Free food and refreshments will be provided by the association, but all members planning to attend must contact Secretary Norm Wooster by mail or phone by May 13. Team sponsors are also invited to attend.

Bob Lynch, Eastern seaboard field representative, and Bob Lyons, district director from Erie, plan to attend the meeting. All league secretaries are urged to bring or send season average sheets for the past season.

Magistrates Use Grassroots To Muster Aid

HARRISBURG (AP) - The Pennsylvania Magistrates Association is mustering grassroots opposition to the constitutional convention, but plans no statewide "large expenditure campaign," said president Robert E. Baker yesterday.

Baker discussed the association's plans after a meeting here of the group's directors. The convention plan goes before the voters for approval in the May 16 primary.

"We have taken the unalterable stand that the amendment method to update the constitution is the correct method," said Baker, "and are opposed to the constitutional convention as presently called."

Baker said the directors felt an estimated "expenditure of $1.5 million to enact four amendments is entirely unwarranted" in view of Gov. Shafer's plans to increase taxes. "Our association is joining with county organizations" and "will work from the grassroots level only," said Baker. The magistrates' organization president said a large advertising campaign is not necessary because "the public needs only to be told the truth."

The magistrates group previously expressed opposition to the convention. Sunday's meeting was called specifically to discuss strategy to fight the convention, Baker said.

More Than 100 Veterans Re-Stage Bataan March

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
MANILA (AP)—More than 100 American veterans, many of whom were prodded through the streets of Manila by Japanese rifles in 1942, marched there again yesterday to commemorate old battles and fallen comrades.

Bataan fell 25 years ago yesterday. Many of its American and Filipino defenders moved on to the island fortress of Corregidor, which held out for almost one more month.

The old soldiers, perspiring in the afternoon heat and not quite in step, led a Bataan Day military parade past the tomb of the unknown Filipino soldier.

Jet fighters and bombers of the Philippine and American air forces flew low overhead and President Ferdinand Marcos, a hero of Bataan, saluted from the reviewing stand.

The crowd of some 50,000 Filipinos gave the American veterans a huge cheer, many perhaps remembering the Americans they had seen 25 years ago.

Fuel Cells Can Replace Gas, Scientists Say

MEXICO CITY (AP)—British and United States experts disagreed with a Russian scientist yesterday over prospects for fuel cells replacing gasoline as a clean and noiseless power for automobiles.

V.S. Bagotzky of the Moscow Academy of Sciences told the seventh world petroleum congress the first experimental models of automobiles with fuel cells will make their appearance within the next five to 10 years.

Frederick D. Rossini of Notre Dame University earlier had said most U.S. scientists believe fuel cells can compete within a few years for almost any large requirement of energy except that of the private automobile.

K. R. Williams of Shell Research, Ltd., in Great Britain agreed with Rossini. "No fuel cell system yet developed seems at all suitable for private automobiles," Williams said.

weak from their forced march. About 400 of the American Bataan and Corregidor defenders who did not march stood silently as a Philippine air force band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the Philippine national anthem.

At 4:30 p.m., the exact time of the surrender 25 years ago, a siren sounded for the observance of one minute's silence throughout the country in honor of the Filipinos and Americans who died.

Earlier, American and Filipino defenders visited the 152-acre war cemetery near Manila where 17,207 Americans who died in the Philippines are buried.

State Education, Welfare Requests Seen on Upswing

HARRISBURG (AP) - A special House report predicts that the state government will be asked to increase spending for health, welfare and higher education programs by $1 billion in the next 10 years.

This report, submitted to Gov. Shafer over the weekend, evolved from a public hearing last week.

Reps. H. Jack Seltzer, R-Lebanon, and John J. Anderson, R-York, were co-chairman of the House panel that conducted the two-day hearing.

The legislators said their initial analysis did not take into account the increased cost of basic education, which they termed "the single biggest item of state expenditure."

Seltzer and Anderson said they concluded that "the Commonwealth must rapidly move toward a system of budget protection. We can no longer afford to approach the state's fiscal needs one year at a time."

Shafer to Unveil Budget Tomorrow; See Tax Hike

By The Associated Press
HARRISBURG (AP) - Gov. Shafer will unveil his long-awaited budget for 1967-68 tomorrow and most observers look for another record spending proposal and the possibility of increased taxes.

The governor has remained silent thus far on his proposed spending program for the fiscal year which begins July 1.

The consensus of veteran observers is that Shafer will submit a budget of about $1.8 billion. This compares with the present budget of $1.464 billion.

Shafer also has maintained tight secrecy about the possibility of increased taxes.

His special tax commission reported to him that the state would need between $200 to $250 million more revenue to finance programs mandated by previous legislatures.

This does not include the cost of any new program Shafer might have in mind.

Reportedly, this same commission gave Shafer several alternatives toward raising more revenue including for the first time — a tax on adjusted net income which is the amount on which federal income tax is computed.

A one per cent levy on this adjusted net income is the most widely reported percentage.

But this proposal raises the possibility of a court fight since some say this would, in essence, be a graduated income tax.

The State Supreme Court has ruled that the language of the state constitution bars the imposition of a graduated income tax, a tax which many legislators also abhor.

There also has been speculation that the governor may merely outline revenue needs tomorrow and wait until after the May 16 primary election before submitting any tax proposal.

The last governor to deliver a "split" message was Gov. John S. Fine.

Still other reports have it that Shafer may leave it up to the legislature as to what sort of tax increase to impose.

According to several published reports yesterday, Shafer is considering these other tax increases in addition to a reported state income tax:

— An increase in the 6 per cent Corporate Net Income Tax by about 1 per cent.

— A hike in the Utility Gross receipts Tax.

— Extension, in some manner, of the 5 per cent Sales Tax.

Under the present sales tax, clothing and groceries are the two biggest exemptions — but there are others, notably medicine. Several key legislators, especially Democrats, shy away from the possibility of extending the sales tax to food and clothing.

Both the House and Senate return at 3 p.m., EST, today but the House will be holding only a token session because of the funeral the same day for Rep. Rocco A. Odorisio, R-Delaware.

Israeli Patrols Find Explosives

BY JAMES FERON
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
JERUSALEM, Israel — Two attempted sabotage acts were discovered yesterday by Israeli border patrols in the Northern Galilee in the aftermath of Friday's ground and air battle with Syria.
United Nations observers investigated the mining of a patrol road near Mayan Baruch and the planting of 11 pounds of explosives under a house in the border settlement of Margaliyot.
Both settlements have been the scene of similar sabotage activities by terrorists which, according to Israel, are based in Syria.
Israeli officials indicated that the terrorists have been active since Friday's violent border clash with Syria. Traces of five men were spotted near Mayan Baruch, the Israelis said, while three men's footprints were spotted at Margaliyot.
The Syrian border itself remained quiet yesterday. Syrian soldiers were seen removing rubble from fortified hill positions which were attacked by Israeli planes during the border clashes.
Meanwhile, Premier Levi Eshkol met with his cabinet at its regular Sunday session and reviewed the clash with Syria. Eshkol was reported later to have said that Syrian incursions had increased at the very time that attempts were being made to hold talks on cultivation problems under U.N. auspices.
The talks had been halted, Eshkol said, after Syria had fired on agricultural settlements and farmers in an attempt to interfere with work in areas where ownership had never been disputed.
Syria had wrongly assessed the limits of Israel's patience, Eshkol said in a statement released after the cabinet session adding that it remained in Syria's interest not to precipitate situations in which Israel had to act in self defense.
Israel's foreign ministry reported earlier that it had been informed by local U.N. officials that Syria had withdrawn a complaint it had made over Israel's violation of Syrian air space during Friday's hostilities.
The Israeli view was that Syria was not anxious to encourage a U.N. inquiry that might shed light on the claims from Damascus that five or six Israeli planes had been shot down in the encounters.

Michigan City Aids Grocers with Guns

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — While its big city neighbor, Detroit, is discouraging the use of guns by merchants against holdup men, the Highland Park Police Department is running a free gun clinic to teach them how to use firearms.
"Store owners and citizens in Highland Park and Detroit are afraid," said Police Chief William E. Stephens of Highland Park. "In the past several days residents have been flooding our office requesting gun permits, and the police department is to give these people permits, then it is only reasonable to instruct them how, when and where to use their guns."
The program, begun last week, is designed solely for self-protection of businessmen and others against thugs and holdup men, Stephens said.
Walter Shamie, a former mayoral candidate and editor of Grocer's Spotlight, a trade journal, set up a Detroit clinic after his efforts to have Detroit police sponsor the plan failed.
Detroit police warned that gun-toting grocers would lead to more violence.
"I don't feel arming grocers would encourage more violence," Shamie said. "The type of crime would be frightened off if he knew his intended victim had a gun."
In the past five weeks, five holdup men have been shot to death by Detroit grocers during attempted holdups. Bandits have slain two grocers.
Stephens, a police officer for 31 years, was asked about his decision to establish the gun clinic while Detroit police refused a similar request.
"Detroit had its troubles, I have mine and we've got crime," Stephens replied.
Highland Park, a suburb surrounded by Detroit, has 38,000 residents and a number of small grocery stores and small businesses on six main thoroughfares.
Stephens said crime is up 27 per cent from last year.

New York Printers Union Intensifies Bargaining

By EMANUEL PERLMUTTER
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — The printer's union intensified its bargaining pressure against the Daily News last night by increasing its shop meetings there to three hours, a period in which the men do no work.
Since March 31, the printers had been holding two-hour "report" meetings on each of the three work shifts.
By increasing the length of its chapel meetings, Typographical Union 6 emphasized the critical character of its negotiations with the News, which have so far produced no new contract to supplant the one that expired March 30.
Since the printers have a seven-hour work day, they will henceforth not be working about 43 per cent of the time, leaving the News with that much less time for setting type on news and advertisements. The men receive full pay while the meetings are in progress.
Last night's meeting was the 30th since the printers began the chapel gatherings. It followed several hours of secret negotiations between the union and the News at an undisclosed place. The talks have concerned the union's demand for a half-hour decrease in their 35-hour week and a 20 per cent wage increase in a two-year contract.
Although 10 unions have been negotiating with the News and four other papers that are members of the Publishers Association of New York City, only the printers have thus far received a wage offer. The other papers are the New York Times, the World Journal Tribune, the Long Island Press and the Long Island Star-Journal. All the contracts expired March 30.
Although the printers have been negotiating with the five papers, they have been concentrating on the News. Powers has called the News the "chief obstacle" to an agreement between his union and the publishers. The New York Post, which is not a member of the publishers' association, is not involved in the present negotiations.

WARREN, PA., MONDAY, APRIL 10, 1967

AT WHEATON COLLEGE

Retired Pastor's Son Named Dean

Dr. Phillip Hook, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Hook of Warren, has been named dean of students at Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.

The Rev. and Mrs. Hook reside at 1209 Pennsylvania ave. W. He was pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Baptist Church until he retired.

Dr. Hook who has visited Warren several times and was here with his family last summer, has been at Wheaton College for five years. He is a graduate of Westmont College and studied at Dallas Theological Seminary for his MA and PhD degrees. His appointment to the Wheaton post is effective Aug. 1. He succeeds Dr. Richard Gross, who has accepted an appointment as dean of Gordon College.

Dr. Hook's administrative duties will include responsibility for all student personnel services, including housing, health, student activities, counseling, employment, placement, and the Christian Service Council.

Prior to going to Wheaton, Dr. Hook was dean of men at Philadelphia Bible College. Recently promoted to associate professor at Wheaton, he became chairman of the Bible and philosophy department last September. He was Junior Teacher of the Year in June, 1965. He is listed in the 1967 volume of "Outstanding Young Men of America."

He has been associate pastor of the First Baptist Church in Wheaton and once served as chief of staff and Bible teacher at the Scandaga Bible Camp at Broadalbin, N.Y. He is chairman of the commission of theology of the National Association of Evangelicals and a frequent lecturer in the Scripture Press Leadership Training Institute. Last October, he attended the World Congress on Evangelism in Berlin.

'Priest' Held For Smashing Store Windows

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — A man wearing the garb of a priest in the Greek Orthodox Church smashed 14 windows of a shoe store with bricks and a tire jack Saturday, police said. He identified himself as Father Raphael P. Kenel, 44, of the Holy Eucharist Monastery in Dewittville. He was arrested on a charge of malicious mischief.

Kenel purchased the former Chautauqua County Home and infirmary about three years ago and established the monastery, described as a one-man operation.

He appeared in City Court without a lawyer. The case was referred to the county's public defender office.

Kenel returned to jail in lieu of $250 bail.

SCOUTING IN ACTION SHOW HELD

Hundreds of Boy Scouts from throughout the Corplanter Council were at the National Guard Armory on Hickory street in Warren on Saturday for the "Scouting in Action" show. These Scouts from Troop 29, Youngsville, displayed the badges and uniforms of their avocation proudly. The show provided the county with an in-depth look at what the Boy Scouts program has done and is doing for youngsters. (Photo by Mansfield)

Governor May Request State Income Tax Levy

HARRISBURG — Gov. Raymond Shafer may ask the General Assembly tomorrow for a one per cent income tax to raise half of the state's necessary additional revenue of $300 million.

The one per cent tax would be payable at the end of the year on the net income reported on federal income returns, sources at the Capitol said. Gov. Shafer has repeatedly dodged the question of whether tax increases would be needed or, if so, where they would be made. He said at a news conference a month ago that he would await the report of a special committee which is due to report this month. The committee has been studying the state's financial needs and methods of meeting them.

There has been little doubt that increases are needed. Reports of an income tax have been circulating for weeks. Such a tax would yield $125 to $170 million per year.

Some sources doubted that Gov. Shafer would ask for the tax increase immediately. They said he would outline the financial needs of the state before the Legislature tomorrow and save the specific tax proposals for later.

The additional millions will be needed to finance a record budget in the neighborhood of $1.7 billion. Last year's budget was $1,464,000,000. Part of the increase is for highways, which is demanding a $35 billion slice of federal and state tax dollars in the next 20 years.

The new budget will finance state operations for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1967. More than 70 per cent will be spent on education, health, and welfare services, which the General Assembly has already passed into law.

A surplus of $50 million from this fiscal year will be figured into Gov. Shafer's report tomorrow.

The financial committee which has reported to the governor was headed by Dr. David H. Kurtz, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh. Last month, in a speech in Lancaster, he pegged the additional revenues figure at $300 million. The committee's report, however, has not been formally made public. The governor and his staff have made no statements on it.

A graduated income tax, such as the federal tax, is ruled out by Pennsylvania's constitution, which states that all taxes must be uniform. Gov. Shafer, as well as most Republicans are against a flat income tax because of its effect on the working man, who would notice it the most. Thus, the proposal probably would not be aimed not at the gross income, but the adjusted net income. For instance, a man with a family who earns $10,000 per year probably would not have to pay $100, as a flat one per cent tax would levy, but $50 based on exemptions for his family and other considerations.

Town Crier

... By Les Rickey

Elizabeth Dwyer, writing in the Bennington, Vt., Banner, has asked the question and it bears consideration of a sort: Where do all those lowly pennies go?

It seems that the U.S. Mint has sent into the world some 45 million pennies or thereabouts in the past 25 years, but there's an increasingly acute shortage of them. The Treasury people are turning them out at a clip of 3,000 per minute, but they just can't keep up with the demand. The U.S. economy just soaks them up and hollers for more.

These pennies lie fallow, like farmers' fields, and the government is at a loss to locate them. So far, they've resisted the temptation to have the FBI seek them out, but the situation grows more desperate by the minute. One can almost see the microphones sprouting on bubble gum machines across the land, as federal agents monitor the clink of junior's fortune.

The $9.99 special has a bearing on it, too, putting more pennies in the pocketbooks than could be carried at once by the combined forces of the Teamsters Union. Add that to the sales tax penny-ante, and you've got a lot of copper stockpile for the next ration period. And parking meters; we can't forget parking meters.

They get flattened on railroad tracks, swallowed by the swaddling-clothes set, thrown out with the old college sports coat, junked with the spring cleaning, and leaked away by the helter-skelter of shoppers in too much of a hurry to waste their time on them when they hit the sidewalk.

But there's a curious quirk here, according to Mrs. Dwyer, and I believe her. It seems that the U.S. Mint makes a profit of $1 on each 145 pennies it turns out. The price of copper and the cost of minting are only about 45 cents. Why then, if each penny lost is a penny saved, does the Treasury worry about it? Well, that's government, Mrs. Dwyer. That's government.

TO DETECT DISEASE

Free X-Rays Drive Begins

The Warren County Tuberculosis and Health Society today begins a week-long series of portable X-ray visits as a precaution for the county's residents. The portable X-ray unit will provide free examinations at three locations today. The first stop is at Elm street and Pennsylvania avenue East, where the unit will be at Shaeffers Electric from 1 to 3 p.m.

The next stop is the Clarendon Fire Hall from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. The final stop today is at Sheffield's fire hall from 6 to 9 p.m.

The society said there are five basic reasons for any person to have a chest X-ray, all of them subjective: (1) I've never had a chest X-ray before; (2) I haven't had one in more than a year; (3) Someone in my family has had tuberculosis; (4) I've known or worked with someone with active tuberculosis; (5) I want to be SURE my lungs are all right.

"Many diseases — including tuberculosis, lung cancer, and enlarged heart — can be found by X-ray long before any symptoms appear," the society said in announcing the campaign. "Your best chance of getting well is to find the trouble early by X-ray and treat it early."

Other free visits scheduled throughout the week are: Tuesday—North Warren Bank, 12:30 p.m.; Russell service station, 3-4 p.m.; Sugar Grove fire hall, 4:30 - 5:30 p.m.; Youngsville National Bank, 7-9 p.m.

Wednesday—Garland Fire Hall 1-2 p.m.; Pittsfield Post Office, 2:30-3:30 p.m.; Tideauto fire hall, 5:30-9 p.m.

Thursday—Quality and Jamesway plaza, 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m.

Friday—Montgomery Wards, Liberty street, 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m.

Nutty Business

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (AP) — In a blooming black market, walnut-tree rustling is a big dodge hereabouts.

A farmer at Thetford reported that on returning from holiday he found 30 of his trees had been cut below ground level and removed completely. The earth was resodded to remove all traces.

Teachers to Hear Cordier Wednesday

The "dramatic changes" of an ever-expanding world of technology and science are drastically changing the social studies, according to Ralph W. Cordier, who will speak to the county's social studies teachers Wednesday.

Dr. Cordier, dean of academic affairs at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, will address the group on "Pressures and Priorities in the Social Studies." The teachers will meet at the Penn Laurel Motel at 6:30 p.m.

"The sheer explosion of human knowledge and the uncertainties about the nature of our world shall assume only 30 years from now, when our students of today become responsible adult citizens, require a new and fresh look at what we should be doing in the social studies," Dr. Cordier said in a letter to Warren officials.

Dr. Cordier is a noted lecturer and historian, having written 48 articles in leading educational journals and co-authored eight history textbooks.

The lecturer said in his letter to William D. Oelslager of Warren High, who is arranging the event, that this explosion in knowledge requires new definitions of the goals of instruction and the selection of content from history, government, economics and sociology.

SPEBSQSA Celebrates Anniversary

Local Barbershoppers have launched a busy schedule to celebrate the birthday of the International Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America.

Saturday, the Warren singers joined a group from Olean, N.Y., for a festival of songs to raise money for Logopedies, the organization's primary service project.

April 22, Warren travels to Syracuse, N.Y., where they hope to regain the title of District Champions.

Corry will then host the locals on April 29 for a "Pack-age" show to help raise money for a charitable organization in that town.

On May 6 they will attend at Port Allegany package show in behalf of a charitable organization there.

Representatives Gave Yes Votes On Ten Measures

Warren County's two legislators voted yes on five bills each in the General Assembly last week, the Times-Mirror and Observer bureau in Harrisburg reported. All bills were passed.

Rep. William Fuelhart's affirmative votes came on bills to amend the second class township code, authorize payments for malt or brewed beverages with checks and bank drafts, amend the vehicle code by further regulating the use of dealer registration plates, amend the penal code to prevent glue-sniffing, and require that stuffed toys sold in the state be subject to a flammability test.

Sen. Richard Frame voted yes on bills to provide for appeals from the motor vehicle code point system, amending the public school employees code to further regulate the re-employment of annuitants, amend the second class township code to prevent semi-annual conventions and increasing the number of days of attendance, remove the limitation on the amount county commissioners can appropriate for agricultural extension work, and eliminate the fixed salary provision for the office of deputy commissioner of the state police.

Jamestown College Gets Student Union

Officials of Jamestown Community College announced Saturday that the college has subleased the former Cresbury Building at 1255 E. Second st., Jamestown for use as a Student Union.

The building will be used for several student activities. Students began Thursday to clean and renovate the former clothing store in preparation for the opening next week.

The building has about 14,000 square feet of space. Faculty advisors, Robert Alessi and William G. West Jr. are seeking items such as ping pong tables, furniture, a piano, a television set, and other material to refinish the building. Anyone having any of these articles to donate is asked to contact the dean of students office at the college.

The student committee headed by Kathleen Jacobson, who made arrangements to obtain the new facility included Morton Ettleson, James Wittmeyer, Robert Law, Peter Cala, Roxie Weaver, Fred Hayes, Cheryl Alm, Ronald Graham, Russell Cusimano, and Marsh Carlson.

College officials said the building has been leased on a three-month basis with an option to lease for a longer period of time. Students plan to hold an American Red Cross Blood Bank there April 14.

Job Picture Mixed in February

Pennsylvania's employment picture was mixed when February ended, the Bureau of Employment Security reported this weekend. While the employment total was the highest for any February, it still showed a loss of 19,800 jobs since the month before.

The total employment was 4,534,500, the Labor and Industry office reported. The decline was described as seasonal.

Current employment, however, is 80,800 ahead of last year and 377,000 ahead of four years ago.

The month's seasonal losses came in the construction business and retail trade, for the most part. There were small and mixed changes in factory employment for a net loss of 2,600. The construction loss was 10,700. The retail trade decline was 10,100. In the manufacturing category, fabricated metal products factories showed a loss of 600.

On the other side of the scale, workers in finance, insurance, and real estate increased by 1,000; government workers increased by 4,100; and workers in transportation and public utilities increased by 500.

Jamestown Driver Arrested

JAMESTOWN — Ronald Friend, 21, of 5 Crossman st., Jamestown, was arrested Friday by city police and charged with leaving the scene of an accident at the intersection of Forest and Newland avenues.

According to police the car being operated by Friend struck a vehicle operated by Hazel Lieburg of RD 1, Kennedy, N.Y. A witness to the accident followed Friend and noted the make and license number of his car and turned the information over to city police. Officers apprehended Friend 10 minutes later at the corner of Crossman and North Main streets.

Two passengers in the Lieburg auto were injured in the mishap. Mrs. Betty Schwartz, 26, of 121 Ivy st., Jamestown, was treated at WCA Hospital for head and neck injuries and later released. Also injured was Diane Anderson of Tyler rd., Mayville, N.Y., who was admitted to Jamestown General Hospital with an injury to her left leg.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR READERS: One of the unalterable characteristics of human nature is the inclination to express oneself AGAINST something more often and more strongly than FOR something. The aginners in our society are infinitely more vocal (and better organized) than the "positive thinkers."

I recently printed a letter decrying the easy availability of guns in this country and the need for some decent gun laws. I agreed with the writer and asked my readers to write to their senators and congressmen and state legislators. As a result of that one letter, my mail has virtually tripled. The National Rifle Association boasts 800,000 members. I have the feeling that most of them must have written (at least once) to tell me to "Get lost!" "Drop dead!" "Go down." There were numerous other suggestions—mostly unprintable.

Here are some samples of what my week has been like:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What are you, a Communist or something? What do you mean by trying to take guns away from the American people? Don't you know the Constitution of the United States gives us the right to bear arms? I'm going to write to my senator as you suggested, but it won't be about gun laws. It will be a request that you be investigated for un-American activities.—TEXAS CITIZEN.

I replied to Texas citizen (and to 20,000 other citizens who made the same point) that the intent of the second amendment to the Constitution is to give each state the right to maintain an organized militia. It doesn't mean states and the federal government can't have laws strictly regulating the sale and registration of firearms. Many states already have such laws (and less trouble).

Here's another doll:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Guns are not dangerous. People who don't know how to use guns are dangerous. What we need is proper instruction on the handling of firearms. I am in favor of school children being taught in the classroom how to use a gun. Children who grow up with guns and learn early how to handle them intelligently will never have a problem.—R.A. OF ILLINOIS

DEAR R.A.: You sound like that New England psychiatrist who was in favor of school kids learning how to drink liquor in kindergarten. His theory was that if kids became acquainted with liquor early in life, they would know how to handle it later. Sorry, but I didn't buy his theory and I don't buy yours.

DEAR ANN: If people want to kill they will kill. If they don't have a gun handy they will use a knife, or a letter opener, or a silk stocking. The Boston strangler used his hands. So why don't you stick to love problems and stay out of things you don't know anything about?—CHARLIE

DEAR CHARLIE: Police officers say guns are about eight times more likely to kill than other weapons. Of the 35 men who have served as President of the United States, one-fifth have been shot at, four were killed, two were wounded and two were missed. According to the FBI in 1965, 53 American police officers were murdered—52 by guns.

The most sensible and practical letter came from a teen-age boy. I will publish his letter tomorrow. See you here.

father, the bride wore a white silk floor length gown with basque bodice, sabrina neckline, the bouffant skirt with self-roses gracefully swept into a chapel train. Pearls and crystals formed a florette headpiece which secured her full veil of silk illusion. She carried a white orchid encircled with stephanotis.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Sandra Ostrander, sister of the bride, of Port Allegany, wore peacock satin with matching hat and accessories. She carried a cymbidium orchid and hyacinth blossoms. Gowned similarly but in white trimmed in orchid, green, maize and rose, with matching accessories respectively, were the bridesmaids, the Misses Anita Jean Chase of Bradford, Happy Nobbs of Panama, N.Y., Susan Abers, sister of the bridegroom, of Bradford, Mistress Cynthia Sue Ostrander, niece of the bride, was in a long gown of the same style as the adult attendants, with peacock trim, matching shoes, and a band of flowers for her hair. She carried a basket of rose petals.

Groomsmen were Gerald G. Anderson of Kane, Russell Greer, brother of the bride, of Derrick City, Ronald Simpson of Jamestown, Peter Butryn of Falconer, N.Y., and Kermit Brown of Smedport. The ringbearer was Brian Abers, brother of the groom.

The mother of the bride chose a blue brocade suit with matching hat and accessories. The mother of the groom was in a pink jacket dress with matching accessories. Both had corsages of white roses. Mrs. Russell Stewart Mrs. Lottie Greer and Mrs. Margaret Grimm, grandmothers, were remembered with corsages of yellow roses.

A reception was held in the Derrick City Fire Hall with two hundred guests in attendance. Decorations of white bells and flowers highlighted the wedding cake.

For a wedding trip to Florida, the new Mrs. Abers wore a knit suit of royal blue with matching accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Abers will reside in Willoughby, Ohio, after April 25.

The bride is a graduate of Bradford Area High School, and Gale Institute, Indianapolis, Ind. She was employed at National Forge Company in Warren. The groom, also a graduate of Bradford Area High School, graduated from Jamestown Business College and is presently a student at Dyke University in Cleveland, Ohio.

The rehearsal dinner was given in the home of the bride's parents.

Guests from out of town attended the wedding from Harrisburg, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, Penna.; Detroit, Michigan, and Buffalo, N.Y.

MOM'S GOT A REPUTATION SINCE SHE GOT HER NEW FLAME.

She has a reputation as one of the best cooks in the neighborhood. And she owes it all to her handsome, easy-going new flame—a modern Gas range.

Mom, the chef, is always dropping names like Burner-with-a-Brain, and Oven-with-a-Mind and automatic rotisserie. And names like broiled filet en crouete, spinach souffle, quiche Lorraine and ham mousses.

In fact, Mom's something of a show-off with her "Programmed Gas Cooking." She just puts the food into the oven, sets the time and temperature, and then goes about other business with studied indifference toward her cooking. She can afford a great show of confidence because her Gas oven will automatically stop cooking at precisely the correct moment and keep her dinner piping hot, without overcooking or drying out, until everyone is ready to eat.

Needless to say, the whole family is happy with Mom's new flame. And Mom is happy with her new reputation.

MRS. ALEX M. BURGESS III
(Talcott Studio)

Wedding Vows Pledged In Jamestown Church

The Christ Chapel of First Methodist Church, in Jamestown, New York, was the setting for the exchange of wedding vows between Nancy V. Gustafson and Alex M. Burgess III on Saturday, April 8, at 2 o'clock that afternoon. The Rev. D. Arnone, pastor of the Salem Church, Jamestown, read the double ring rites in the presence of approximately seventy-five guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. Albin Gustafson of 107 Tew Street, Jamestown, N. Y., and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Alex M. Burgess Jr., of Providence, Rhode Island.

Mrs. C. Peck provided traditional wedding music at the organ, and the Rev. Donald Gustafson and the Rev. Kenneth Gustafson, brothers of the bride, were the vocalists. A bouquet of flowers ornamented the altar for the service.

Escorted on the arm of her father, the bride was gown in a wedding dress of Camilla white taffeta, the Empire waistline defined with a dainty front bow; the bodice had a portrait neckline; long narrow sleeves were edged with a band of embroidered Alencon lace with tiny fabric rosebuds; the silhouette skirt was designed with pleated back fullness with an applied lace medallion centered with a rosebud. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion was caught to a bandeau of embroidered Alencon lace topped with a delicate cluster of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade of white carnations.

The maid of honor, Miss Lillian Gustafson, sister of the bride, was in mint green silk chiffon over taffeta with matching coat of lace and a chiffon Dior headbow. She carried a cascade of yellow carnations. Bridesmaid Miss Janice Kelley, groomed similarly to the honor attendant, carried a cascade of yellow roses. Flower girl Mistress Karen Gustafson, niece of the bride, was in a frock of pink and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow carnations.

The best man was Seth Burgess of Providence, R. I., brother of the groom, and ushers were the Rev. Donald Gustafson of Manchester, Conn., and the Rev. Kenneth Gustafson of Pittsburgh, Penna., brothers of the bride.

The mother of the bride chose a navy dress with a corsage of red sweetheart roses, and the mother of the groom was in turquoise and also had red sweetheart roses.

A reception was held in the church parlors where a small bouquet ornamented the bride's table. Aides were Mrs. Donald Gustafson, Miss Diane Matt.

A New You by Emily Wilkens The Winning Hand

Did you ever stop to think of how many duties your hands perform daily... hourly... minute-by-minute? In water or cleanser... handling papers... making beds... baking pies... weeding the garden... applying cosmetics.

About the only time your hands are really at rest is when you're fast asleep. The rest of the time they're overworked, busy making the world go round.

All the chores you tackle—housework, laundry, dishes—and all the paperwork at school or job! These are the culprits that lurk around the clock ready to stain, nick, dry, roughen, red- den and wreck your hands.

Moreover, unbelievable as it seems, some of the cosmetics that enhance the face and hair may damage the hands, just as other grooming aids (deodorants, depilatories, medicated lotions, hair coloring products) are sometimes the cause of inflammation or discoloring of unprotected skin.

Because of such problem-causing products, you should literally work hand in glove. Protective gloves are a relatively inexpensive but effective way to keep all harmful elements at arms' length.

Collect a wardrobe of rubber gloves for: THE BATHROOM: One pair (long) for washing, rinsing out lingerie, bathing the baby. One pair (short) for applying makeup and using grooming aids. You can make your own short version by snipping with pink shears at wrist level. One pair (loose plastic) for applying toilet water, perfume and bath preparations.

THE KITCHEN AND LAUNDRY ROOM: Separate pairs of household gloves for each of these vital locations are a must. OTHER HOUSEHOLD TASKS: Cotton gloves, available in any drug store, are fine for packing, paper work, dusting, or even for outdoor protection. Gardening gloves are another essential.

At first you may find it annoying and awkward to work under cover but, as soon as the results are evident, you'll become an ardent glove enthusiast.

While you're at it, take on an ally for your hidden-hand capers—a bottle of hand lotion or baby oil, battle-stationed at every sink you "visit" during the day. Always apply a light application before donning your gloves to make the lotion work while your hands work.

If your hands don't seem to be responding to this protective treatment within a few weeks, check with a dermatologist for more specialized treatment.

Do rinse your gloves often to make them last longer. Chemicals can be harmful to gloves, too. If you don't like the sight of gloves dripping all over the house, roll them up in a bath towel and tuck them away till dry.

Remember, if you spare the glove, you'll spoil the hand. Follow this covered-up routine faithfully and the NEW YOU will win compliments hands down.

JUST FOR YOU: If your hands are discolored and you want to glamorize them for a special occasion, use a cream foundation that blends with your skin tone. To keep it from rubbing off, press talc over the foundation; brush off after a few seconds and your hand makeup will be set.

Cootiettes Review Past Hospitality Plan Installation

At the recent meeting of the Hayseed Cootiettes Club held in VFW Post No. 631 reports were made on past activities which included the St. Patrick's Day Party, chairmaned by Marie Raybuck, and the Easter visitation to Warren State Hospital, chairmaned by Alice Nasman. The visit was made in conjunction with the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 631 sponsors of the event.

Guests were treated to Easter eggs, baskets, ice cream, pie, cigarettes, tobacco and magazines, with entertainment by Caballeros John Mahon, Clayton Brett, Dave Flick, Steve West, Craig Stoldt and Tom Laufenberger, and Slim and His Night Riders with singer Cow Girl Clara.

Hosts who served refreshments were Axel Nasman, Lowell McCann, Paul Johnson, Pete Baxter, Leo Tremblay, Don Raybuck, Stanley Ustash and from Bradford, Ray Woodley, past grand commander. Cootiettes assisting were Minnie Townley, Alice Nasman, Mary Johnson, Marie Tremblay, Marie Raybuck, Marian Baxter and Coral Ustash.

Chaplain Kate Lingo reported on the special Easter gifts from Cootiettes to Post No. 631 Veterans at Warren State Hospital. She also announced receipt of a monetary gift which is to be used for hospital equipment.

Plans were made to hold a joint installation of officers with the M.O.C. on Sunday, April 30, at 2:30 p.m. There will be a luncheon served at 5:30 with the meat course provided by Cootiettes and Cootiettes, with Alice Nasman the chairman. During the social hour which followed the business meeting, a lunch was served by hostess Marie Tremblay, assisted by Alice Nasman.

A June 17 wedding is being planned.

AUSTRALIA FREE OF TB SYDNEY (AP) — Tuberculosis is now virtually nonexistent in Australia according to figures released recently by the Tuberculosis Division of the Commonwealth Department of Health. As a result 2,539 hospital beds reserved for tuberculosis patients have been allocated to other uses.

Failure to undergo X-rays in areas proclaimed as the state departments of health can bring a maximum fine of 100 Australian dollars ($224 U.S.).

Spring Luncheon of the Philomel Club, marking the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Philomel Club, this anticipated event will begin at one o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, April 12, in the Woman's Club.

Other members of the hostess committee will include Mrs. Glenn Werner, Mrs. J. B. Leide, Mrs. W. B. Africa, Mrs. Joseph McAmbly, Mrs. Ervina Branch, Mrs. Lynn Branch, Miss Rose Maybank, Mrs. Robert Trusler, and Mrs. John Simonson.

At the close of the luncheon, Mrs. James Potter, president, will conduct the annual business meeting, which will include election of officers for 1967-68.

For the musical portion of the program, Mrs. Carl Lundahl, presiding chairman, will present "A History of the Philomel Club for Three Quarters of a Century," Mrs. Arthur Lydell, accompanied by Mrs. Joseph DeFrees, will sing "Sprat Flower" by Campbell-Tipton, "Dear Little Shoes" by K. L. Manning, and "The Twins" by M. Head.

Mrs. Paul Jackson and Mrs. Peter Horning will play two duet-piano numbers: "In a Persian Market" by Albert W. Ketelbey and "Fantasia Impromptu" by Frederic Chopin. Concluding the program, Mrs. Francis Ericsson will sing "If You Only Knew" and "The House on the Hill" by Ernest Charles, Hotel by Francis Poulenc, and "Beau Soir" by Debussy. Mrs. Reece Campbell will play the piano accompaniment.

MARK TRAIL

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR MONDAY, APRIL 10, 1967.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Be alert now. Scrutinize all projects before acting. Rule out doubt, fear of failure. You have the knowhow.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Generous planetary influences now stimulate your endeavors and your aspirations for future attainment. This is no time to rest on past laurels. Put forth your best efforts.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—The time and opportunity are here! ACCOMPLISH! You will be happy later that you strived. Don't mind if progress is slow at first. It will gather momentum.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Love those "old ways"? That routine you have been following for some time? It may need some revitalizing. Stop and think! You can't progress by "standing still."

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Benefic solar influences continue. Take the optimistic point of view. It will give a clearer picture of potentialities and an enthusiasm that translates into fertile ideas. progress.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—It need not be a striking point you make, nor a drastic move that completes the success picture. Maybe the simplest turn, touch, alteration will do it.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Shift to whatever method or tack will put you and your efforts in the best light. Astute action can make any sincere endeavor easier, register gains faster.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—If at first you don't succeed, keep right on trying. Stop and think. Are you headed in the right direction? Allay worries by astute thinking, concise action, laudable goals.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Aim to balance things off, to keep the scales even for harmony's and wisdom's sake. Some deceptive influences are prevalent now, so don't be careless.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Your planets present a quiet picture. Inject a bit of pep, gumption into activities, where needed. Incentive can be tailored to meet top requirements.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—If you forget a chore or promise, quickly take up where you left off. With your disarming smile and easy manner (if you keep them thus), you can retrieve lost prizes.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—An appetite for hard work and consistent accuracy will help you break through "impossible" barriers. Reap harvests happily.

YOU BORN TODAY are sociable, intellectually inclined, happy with enthusiastic, cheery people. You are unhappy in gloomy, dark or untidy surroundings. You shine at unexpected moments because you always pay attention to essentials and see the whole picture sooner than less heading persons. Your selfishness is notable, also restlessness and lack of confidence. Put the same trust in your ability that others have, and you will go forward steadily, easily. Birthdate of: William Hazlitt, British critic, essayist; William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army; Clare Boothe Luce, author, playwright, stateswoman.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

(c) 1967 By The Chicago Tribune

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

and how to put out different types of home fires. A grease blaze, for example, requires sand, a blanket, or carbon dioxide. A wood or paper fire needs water. Does the fire extinguisher work? Can the garden hose be connected in a jiffy so it can be used on the second floor bedroom? The proper equipment might prevent extensive damage and save life.

HOME FIRE DRILL

Fire killed approximately 12,100 Americans in 1966 with property damage of 1.8 billion dollars. But its most terrible cost is not estimated in dollars but in human misery. All too often victims are helpless children who die while mother is away on an errand. These tragedies could be minimized if parents made it a rule never to leave youngsters alone in the house.

Have you ever had a fire drill at home? Such maneuvers often reveal how uninformed the average family is on how to escape in case of fire. Many do not know where the neighborhood alarm is located. Practicing the drill when everything is calm is much better than waiting until pandemonium reigns. And don't forget to write the number of the fire department near the telephone.

Prevention is an old story to adults but repeat it again and again to children. Tell them about oily rags and litter in basements and attics, overloading electrical circuits, smoking, matches, and curtains, etc.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request. TOMORROW. A Puzzling Disease.

Everyone should know how and where to escape, preferably by two ways should the first exit be blocked. Children should be instructed not to open a door that is not because it means a fire is raging on the other side. The next lesson is to go out of doors, walk to the fire alarm, and demonstrate how the gadget operates without putting in a false alarm.

Instruct the family on how to deal with a smaller fire

LESSONS STRAIN

P.R.D. writes: Why does a person with a heart murmur have to decrease his activities?

REPLY

Curtailment is not always necessary because some heart murmurs are incidental noises that have nothing to do with leakage or other abnormalities. Restrictions are advised when the heart is affected because the old pump is working against a handicap and, unless this is done, the ticker enlarges.

Two Tidoute Youths Hurt In Accident

LAKEWOOD, N. Y. — Two Tidoute youths were injured late Friday afternoon when the pickup truck in which they were riding left the pavement and crashed into a tree on the Big Tree-Sugar Grove rd., near Lakewood.

Injured were Thomas Shields, 20, driver of the truck, who complained of pains in the ribs and head, and his passenger, James Emos, 19.

Emos complained of back injuries and abrasions in the ribs and elbows. Both were treated in Jamestown General Hospital and released.

The accident was investigated by Lakewood police officers.

Unlisted Stox Stage Advance

By DOUGLAS W. CRAY
It was a disappointing week on the American Stock Exchange, but the lively over-the-counter market posted another advance at the close last Friday.

The week began on a sour note last Monday, when the American Stock Exchange turned in its sharpest decline since last October. It spent the rest of the week trying to recover but failed to do so at the windup on Friday.

Over-the-counter industrial issues, on the other hand, sagged slightly early in the week but managed to come back with some widespread gains on Friday.

Even the reduction in the discount rate, announced after the close of the market on Thursday, failed to lift the Amex. As one broker put it: "It looks as if the market has already discounted easy money."

The Amex also appears to have already discounted what turned out to be a disappointing first quarter for business generally.

The National Quotation Bureau's index of 35 industrial issues on the over-the-counter market posted a respectable increase for the week. It slipped slightly on Tuesday and stood at 280.14. By Friday, however, it had climbed to 283.58, up 3.03 from the level on the preceding Friday.

It was a different story insofar as the Amex's stock index was concerned. The index dropped 24 cents on Monday and never did manage to erase this sharp decline. At week's end, the index stood at $17.34, down 18 cents for the week. This marked the first weekly drop in the exchange's index so far this year.

Volume moved higher slightly last week on the American Stock Exchange. It wound up at 17,589,365, compared with 17,378,065 traded in the previous week.

One of the better performers last week on the over-the-counter market was Cryplex Industries, which soared 5 points

New York Times Business Index

(c) 1967 New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, April 8—The New York Times weekly index of business activity fell to 295.05 from 305 in the preceding week. A year earlier it was 289.2. The following table gives the index and its components, each of which has been adjusted to reflect the long-term seasonal trend:

	April 1 1967	March 25 1967	April 2 1966
Combined Index	296.05	305.0	289.2
Misc. Loadings	104.5	103.6	105.4
Other Loadings	60.0	63.9	61.0
Steel	162.2	164.7	184.7
Electric	508.8	523.3	500.6
Paperboard	418.9	449.3	458.2
Lumber	105.0	109.9	117.5

on reports that the company is about to sign an agreement with a major electronics producer covering use of a Cryplex process for encapsulating semiconductor devices in plastic.

Expectations of sharply improved earnings for the year ended April 30 helped move Pickwick International ahead a point. The company is a leading merchandiser of economy-priced records.

Projections of better profits for the year ended April 30 also sent Heath Techna up 4 points on brisk volume.

An improvement in 1966 earnings perked up interest in Butterick and the stock climbed 2 points.

WEEK IN FINANCE

Government Continues Fight On Inflation

By THOMAS E. MULLANEY

(c) N. Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK—Washington continues to show concern—without conceding it—over the economy's halting progress this year. There appears a determination within both the Administration and the Federal Reserve System to waste no time in this incipient recession to unsheathe a full arsenal of weapons to combat it. The steps taken to avert, or at least minimize, the economy's slowdown are probably without parallel in United States' history.

The government's latest shot in its program to tilt business upward again was fired Thursday when the FRS decided unanimously to reduce the discount rate to 4 per cent from 4.5 per cent.

Although this action was expected, it produced an immediate but brief reaction in the financial markets.

Welcomed almost everywhere, the lowering of the discount rate led to a moderate run-up in stock prices and the usual corollary reaction in the bond market, where prices rose and interest rates declined. Stock prices, however, quickly reversed course and returned to the lower pattern that prevailed early in the week.

When it announced its decision to cut the discount rate, the Federal Reserve said its action was "in line with recent declines in market rates and in keeping with the policy objectives of assuring that the availability of credit is adequate to provide for orderly economic growth."

Early last month the Central Banking System had set the stage for the discount rate reduction by lowering bank reserve requirements against savings and time deposits and then making massive purchases of government securities to provide banks with additional lending capacity.

Those actions had precipitated a general decline in interest rates, culminating in a general reduction in the prime lending rate of banks to the 5.5 per cent level. Until late January, the prime rate had stood at 6 per cent for several months.

Just before last week's action on the discount rate, however, there was evidence that further lowering of interest rates was running into investor resistance. Some observers felt market rates might have started upward again had the Fed not moved quickly in moving the discount rate downward.

Whether this move will lead to further cuts in other interest rates was not clear, but bankers acknowledged that it puts new pressure on the prime and other bank lending rates.

Over the last three months significant steps have been taken to bolster the domestic economy. President Johnson has released $1.4 billion in federal funds—or one-fourth of the amount frozen last fall in an anti-inflation program—to aid housing, highways and other activities. And interest rates, of course, have been sharply reduced.

The discount rate on 90-day U.S. Treasury bills, for instance, has declined from 4.82 per cent at the start of the year to 3.95 per cent last week.

In the same span, Moody's yields on top-grade utility bonds have dropped from 5.44 per cent to 5.2 per cent, and the bond buyer index of municipal bond yields declined from 3.77 per cent to 3.54 per cent.

Just before the discount rate reduction last week, the New York Times asked several economists whether they thought the administration and the Federal Reserve should initiate further steps now as a new hypodermic for the economy.

In an interesting variety of answers some favored the discount-rate cut, others advocated withdrawal of proposed tax increases, and a minority suggested no new moves at this time.

Prof. Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago, who had been Barry Goldwater's economic adviser in the last presidential election campaign, represented the minority opinion that no further steps should be taken at this time to push the economy.

"The problem," Professor Friedman said, "has become reversed. The Fed has again become over-reactive. After being unduly tight from April to December, 1966, it has since become unduly easy."

"The money stock is now rising at a faster rate than can be sustained. The Fed should continue expanding the money stock, but at a more moderate rate."

Also in the group that recommended no new federal moves was Charles B. Reeder, senior economist for E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. and this year's president of the National Association of Business Economists. His view was:

"Government simply cannot force the economy to move along a predetermined path no matter how much they would like to be able to do so."

Several others in the Times' poll, however, favored additional governmental actions to aid the economy, particularly a cut in the Federal Reserve discount rate.

Among them were Nat Goldfinger, director of research for the AFL-CIO, Henry Kaufman, economist for Salomon Brothers & Hutzler; Saul Klamman, chief economist of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, and Prof. Raymond J. Saulnier of Barnard College.

George Hitchings, vice president of American Airlines, limited his suggestion to recommending withdrawal of the Administration's 6 per cent surtax proposal on personal and corporate incomes, rather than merely placing it on the back burner.

"I think there's an important psychological difference in telling people the tax plan is being withdrawn," Hitchings said. "It could always be resubmitted if needed later on."

Klamman, hailing management of monetary policy this year, had this comment:

"On the fiscal side, I would not rescind the proposal for tax increases. However, if housing doesn't turn upward by July 1, I would be inclined to rescind the tax increase and couple it with a request for greater flexibility for the executive department to adjust tax rates."

Prof. Saulnier said the economy needs the correction of four serious imbalances more than any new lift, although he did advocate the cut in the discount rate and a "higher net free reserves position, with an eventual goal of around $500 million."

The free reserves, which represent a gauge of the tightness of credit policy, reached a daily average of $340-million this week, their highest level in four years.

He listed the imbalances as excessive inventories, labor cost increases that outstrip productivity improvements, large and increasing federal budget deficits and a continuing disequilibrium in international payments.

"With the budget deeply in the red as it is," Saulnier asserted, "not much can be done safely by fiscal means except for the White House to take the July 1 date off the proposed tax increase. Unless spending is checked, higher taxes will be needed at some point, but it would be self-defeating to raise them now."

Last week, the First National City Bank of New York also criticized the proposed 6 per cent surtax as "ill-timed and inappropriate." It called for a "slowing in the explosive growth of federal spending."

Increasing federal tampering is also bothering many other analysts. The American Enterprise Institute noted such spending will increase by $38 billion, or 27 per cent, in the 1966-68 period. Defense costs are seen rising by 31 per cent and nondefense expenditures by 26 per cent.

Financial analysts offered several reasons for the stock market's minor reaction last week to the discount-rate cut. Most frequently mentioned was that Wall Street and investors had expected it.

But the president of a New York bank said: "The continued application of medication to the economy is proof that the patient is still sick."

Another explanation is that many investors are temporarily distracted from active interest in stocks by the approaching income tax deadline.

Whatever the reason, there was no denying that the stock market had an unspectacular week. It was decidedly lower, with 895 issues down for the week and 590 up. All the market averages declined.

The Dow-Jones industrials fell 12.64 points to 853.34. The New York Times combined average retreated 8.53 points to 497.82, and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index eased 0.84 to 89.36.

Trading volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 44.6 million shares this week, against 43.1 million the week before.
